Butterfly House
PERU

The Inkaterra Butterfly House, located near Puerto Maldonado's Airport, is both a butterfly garden and a welcome/information center for travelers. This restful place includes a Coffee Shop, waiting room, restrooms with showers, baggage storage, Internet and a Souvenir Shop. Butterflies are raised in the laboratory, where the larvae of different species are grown; a large garden offers the opportunity for observing butterflies in a natural habitat. Travelers can also learn at the information center about the diversity of the flora and fauna in the Tambopata National Reserve.

Peru boasts the greatest number of butterfly species in the world, with over 3,700 identified species accounting for 20 percent of the species found anywhere on earth. For this reason, The Inkaterra Butterfly House offers an interactive experience with the world of these colorful creatures.

At Inkaterra Butterfly House, visitors can directly understand the fascinating transformation of these colorful flying insects, which begin in an elaborate cocoon, after the hungry larvae have eaten their fill of leaves. Inkaterra also offers our guests, as well as the clients of other agencies or other visitors a comfortable and secure place to wait for flights while enjoying the available services. Additionally, the facility is a source of valuable information for travelers who are interested in the protected natural areas of the region.

Upon arrival at Puerto Maldonado's Airport, Inkaterra guests are welcomed with a refreshing fruit drink, an invigorating moist towelette, and pamphlets describing the available activities. Guests may register for their Inkaterra Reserva Amazonica lodging.

Luggage is claimed, and bags needed during the stay at the Reserve are identified for transport. Guests may leave additional suitcases or backpacks in our secure storage area until they return.
